

2011 Tabbies: Last call for nominations

CLEVELAND, US: You worked hard in 2010, and you have one more chance to show the world what you're made of, how hard your staff has worked, why your magazine is the best in your industry. The 2011 Tabbies are in the final stretch.

All English language trade, association or business-to-business magazines and websites are eligible for this editorial, design and online competition. Our office is still accepting late entries (please note the entry fee for late entries is US$95/nomination), postmarked by Friday, 15 April 2011.

The Call for Entries (including the submission form) is available at the TABPI website (www.tabpi.org). Your magazine doesn't have to be located in a particular country or belong to a specific organization to participate. In fact, we've averaged 700 entries over the past few years from across the globe: New Zealand, South Africa, the United States, the UK, Canada, Australia, the United Arab Emirates, and the list goes on.

The Tabbies international b2b magazine competition encompasses 20 categories, and is open to English-language business-to-business publications around the world that are published at least quarterly.

Publications that have already nominated themselves include:
