

One Club Young Ones briefs released

NEW YORK, US: The event's organisers have released the 2013 Young Ones Competition briefs!

This year's competition offers students a choice of two briefs aimed at creating solutions for social change. The first, Pencils for Promises, gives students the opportunity to shed light on the global education crisis affecting millions of students across the globe. The second, Justice By Design, provides students with the opportunity to tackle human rights issues by using design to communicate data for the sake of social justice.

With these briefs, you can begin work on your entry. The entry site will begin accepting entries in the coming weeks. All submissions are due by 8 March.

Email education@oneclub.org if you have any questions.
