

EOH acquisition expands African footprint

Technology group EOH announced on Thursday it was acquiring an equity stake of between 49% and 80% of Twenty Third Century Systems (TTCS) and its subsidiaries, as the group seeks to expand its African footprint further...

"TTCS will significantly augment our Pan-African growth plans and support EOH's purpose of providing technology, knowledge, skills and organisational ability, critical to Africa's development and growth," says EOH CEO Asher Bohbot.

TTCS has a presence across the African continent with offices in Zimbabwe, Zambia, Malawi, Kenya, Uganda, Rwanda, Botswana and Nigeria, and projects in several other countries including Ghana, Namibia, Tanzania and Cameroon.

The Pan-African IT company brings to the EOH a complement of over 400 IT experts in finance, logistics, human capital management, analytics, mobility, cloud and database technologies and provides solutions across the spectrum.

According to Ellman Chanakira, group CEO of TTCS, EOH was a natural home for TTCS, spurred on by EOH's passion for Africa and innovation, coupled with a collaborative and entrepreneurial culture, focused on creating jobs, building skills, as well as providing knowledge services across the continent.

TTCS is a Pan-African IT applications and business solutions provider.

Founded in 1996 by Ellman Chanakira, TTCS has focused on implementing business solutions, as well as IT infrastructure, across Africa and the Middle East.

It operates in both the private and public sector, including the social security, tax and revenue collecting agencies.

It has implemented solutions in a number of large mining and manufacturing enterprises and has developed proprietary solutions for key government departments and agencies.
