

New independent centre for investigative journalism launches

Following six years as the Mail & Guardian's Centre for Investigative Journalism, amaBhungane relaunches today to become a southern African independent centre for investigative journalism. This means the centre will distribute stories more widely through a selection of print and online titles, social media and the website, amaBhungane.co.za.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>