

Surge in traffic to Indian business, finance sites

MUMBAI, INDIA: In India, traffic to business and finance web sites surged 45% in past year as banking sites see strong growth as more Indians turn to the web for their personal financial needs.

comScore, Inc, a leader in measuring the digital world, today released its June 2010 ranking of the top business/finance sites in India based on data from its comScore Media Metrix service. The study found that 19.7 million Internet users in India visited business/finance sites, representing a 45% increase from the previous year, as a growing number of Indians turned to the Web for business and finance-related content including online banking, trading and the latest news on financial markets. Males accounted for 72% of visitors to the business/finance category, driving 78% of total page views and 78% of total minutes spent at the category, with the highest skews among males age 25-34.

"With India emerging as a vibrant global financial centre, online finance is beginning to attract significantly more attention and drive more transactions than ever before in this market," said Will Hodgman, comScore executive vice president for the Asia-Pacific region. "With half of India's online population visiting a business or finance-related site during the month, there is an opportunity to reach and engage financial consumers in a way that was not possible before. Financial companies must focus now on devising effective digital strategies to help attract and retain these important customers or risk losing them to their competitors."
