

Retail websites reach 75% of European internet audience each month

LONDON, UK: comScore, Inc, a leader in measuring the digital world, has released results from a study of online shopping in Europe. In January 2011, 270.6 million unique visitors in Europe visited sites in the retail category, representing a market penetration of 74.5% of Internet users, up 8.5 percentage points versus last year.

Retail sites also showed high penetration in individual markets, reaching at least 75% of the total online audience in 7 out of 18 European markets. In 2010, approximately one out of every ten Internet sessions in Europe included a visit to a retail site.

Retail penetration and engagement growth in Europe

In the United Kingdom, the Retail category reached 89.4% of the total online audience (up 6.3 points from last year), the highest penetration of any European market. France ranked second with a reach of 87% (up 10.5 points), followed by Germany at 82.1% (up 9.0 points). Ireland and the Netherlands round out the list of markets with highest penetration, with Retail reaching 80.7% in Ireland (up 15.8 percentage points) and 80.2% in the Netherlands (up 4.9 percentage points).

Ireland and Russia experienced the highest growth in Retail penetration in Europe, with both markets posting gains of 15.8 percentage points. With 40.6 million visitors coming to retail sites in January, Germany remains the largest European market for this category, followed by France and the UK with 36.6 million visitors and 34.6 million visitors, respectively.

Top retail properties in the markets with the highest retail reach

A snapshot of the five markets with the highest retail category reach shows regionally-based and international retailers accounting for a significant portion of retail traffic. The British Home Retail Group, French luxury retailer Groupe PPR, German catalogue company Otto Gruppe, and Dutch media retailer Bol.com appeared in the list of top retail category properties in these markets alongside Amazon Sites and Apple Sites.

A few top properties experienced significant growth in visitation over the past year across different markets. The Home Retail Group grew 10% in the UK and 52% in Ireland. Amazon Sites, which appears as a top retailer in all five markets, grew by 10% in France. In the Netherlands, Bol.com grew 10% and maintained its hold on the market as the most visited retail property. However, the highest rate of growth in the Dutch market came from supermarket retailer AH.nl (Albert Heijn), which grew by 41%.
