

Tomorrowland Unite to be held in SA

Tomorrowland Unite, the mirror of Tomorrowland, will be coming to the NASREC Expo Centre, Joburg, on Saturday, 23 July, 2016. It will have the same world-class theatrical production that has made the festival famous, and with a live screening of the headlining acts.

With a healthy dose of Tomorrowland magic, this indoor event will be a chance to experience the festival at first hand, from the other side of the world, along with local DJ talent and plenty of showmanship and fireworks.

On the day a live video connection will be made from Boom in Belgium to seven other countries, including South Africa and back again. On four different continents, tens of thousands of guests will be able to experience 'Unite' as one.

Under the title Unite, the mirror of Tomorrowland, seven parties will be held in seven different countries: South Africa, Mexico, Colombia, Germany, Israel, Japan, and India, which will be directly connected, literally, with the festival in Belgium. Unite will be bringing love, unity, madness and magic to seven stadia, tens of thousands of kilometres across the globe from Boom.

Now in it's 12th year, Tomorrowland has called De Schorre, Belgium, its home, and recently extended itself to countries such as the US and Brazil.

Information on the full line-up (local and international) and tickets will be announced on Monday, 16 May.
