

New app for admin of cycling performance centres

Retech South Africa has created an internal application that allows key Cadence Cycling Performance Centres staff members, in its different branches, to do administrative work from a tablet or a smartphone. Staff members will be able to keep register of all the clients and their attendance, know which clients attend which sessions and keep track of monthly growth as well as inventory levels. Using the mobile application, its clients will be able to post questions and comments for staff members to answer. The application will also give warnings on bike sensors or any other technology that may need any maintenance checks. The application will ensure efficiency thus reducing human error, making work easier and less tedious.
