The Cape Town International Convention Centre (CTICC) has hired Taubie Motlhabane to be its new CEO. She will officially take over the centre's current CEO, Julie-May Ellingson, at the end of January 2020.

Motlhabane spoke on her appointment, saying:

“ I am excited about building on the success of the conferencing complex. I know that the sector is a dynamic industry, and one with so much potential. I intend to strategically harness and unlock this possibility and essentially build on the centre's stellar reputation on the global stage. ”
