"I know I'm an ad guy, but honestly, most ads bore the shit out of me," admits Beckerling. "It's no surprise then that from t month's SA Film Reel my favourite piece wasn't an ad at all." Rather, it's a hilarious story of a sniper plagued by technolog his boss and his roommate. "I actually 'loled' a few times, not the kind where you barely crack a smile and say that you di actual out loud 'lagging'.

"It is beautifully written, shot and edited with some top-class dialogue and a stellar performance from the lead... It's so rad see such a high-quality film coming out of South Africa. A lot of time, effort and money goes into these sorts of things and more often than not there is no budget to speak of. Well done to all involved, it's a piece of work you can all be very proud P.S.: You can buy me a piece of cheesecake sometime."

A special mention for the month also went to SPCA's Get This by Anton Visser at Patriot for Direction Craft, which shows that you can choose your best friend but not your family. "The performances of the leads are dry, funny and real and the contrast between them and the characters that are introduced to the scenes to land the idea are nicely timed. Some good comedy to support a cause that's close to my heart. Cheers dudes, nicely done."
