

Karabo Denalane on advertising in such a time as this

A year and a half since being appointed CEO of TBWA\Hunt\Lascaris, Karabo Denalane explains why "there's never been a better time to be in the industry."

Comment on the current and future state of the industry.

Having spent most of my professional life in advertising, I've benefitted from seeing the various cycles of change; from when agencies owned it all, to the rise of specialists and integration. Now that I'm leading a business which seeks to connect and influence consumers living in a 'connected' world, myself and my team have been given a new lease on life as we are ultimately unlearning and relearning every day. At Hunt Lascaris, we keep ourselves honest by rallying behind our disruption operating system, which basically challenges ourselves and our clients to constantly change the status quo and fast track the rules to achieve true disruption. So there really isn't a better time to be in the industry.

What's at the top of your to-do list?

Talent. A large part of my business is making sure that we have the right talent and that they are challenged, energised, and that they are growing and have a place that they can express themselves creatively.

What are you currently reading/listening to/watching for work?

Unfortunately I don't have much time to read lately. I listen to house music to get me through the day, and I've been watching the 2017 Cannes archive reels for inspiration.

What do you love most about your career?

I love the fact that I get to work across industries – from banking to telecoms, and even arts and culture. I also love that I get to work with many different kinds of people, with very different backgrounds, beliefs and outlooks. It makes for good entertainment! Oh, and I am also lucky because my job allows me to travel all over the world!

Tell us something about yourself not generally known.

Growing up, I was a really great skateboarder and I recently got back into it – so yeah, you can catch me skateboarding on some weekends.
