

British multinational advertising company appoints new CEO

British multinational advertising and public relations company WPP has appointed Mark Read as its CEO and an executive director to its board.

Read's appointment comes after a rigorous selection process by WPP's board. He has played a central role in many of WPP's most successful investments and initiatives and is recognised for his leadership throughout the industry.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>