

Energy publication editor up for award

Marlene van Rooyen, editor of 25 Degrees in Africa, has been nominated for the “SANEA Energy Journalism Award” for the Africa energy publication which she “initiated, researched and developed from scratch to become a leader in its industry” according to her citation. In addition, the magazine this month launched a new website, www.25degrees.net, with what it says is “a unique focus on Africa, energy and the environment”.
