

South African Tourism CEO resigns

The South African Tourism Board, after consultation with the Minister of Environmental Affairs and Tourism, Marthinus van Schalkwyk, has accepted the resignation of the organisation's CEO, Moeketsi Mosola. "We would like to thank Moeketsi for his eight years of dedicated service to our country and the tourism industry. He has led from the front as CEO and we wish him all of the best in his future endeavours," said Jabu Mabuza, chairperson of the South African Tourism Board. Mosola is currently serving his notice and with immediate effect, Didi Moyle, COO at South African Tourism, will be acting in the capacity of CEO.
