

PHFat releases Facebook statement on split

After five years, two digital EP releases, a full-length album, various hit single releases, many festival slots, sold-out shows and international tours: The time has come for independent rap act PHFat to change shape.

PHFat released this statement on Facebook yesterday morning: “Since the last big change at PHFat, the journey has been indescribable. Between 2014 and 2015 we played nearly 200 shows to an almost incalculable number of people. We shared music that we poured ourselves into and it was received with the biggest compliment an artist could be paid: we have been able to live off of our art. And as beautiful as all of that is, it is also vulnerable. It is like trusting a friend with a precious secret and having that trust respected. So, from both Narch and Mike, we would just like to extend a big thank you. Thank you for being a part of the journey.

“As with all journeys however, this one has reached a fork in the road and we (Mike and Narch) have decided to amicably part ways. Mike will be carrying on as PHFat and Narch Beats will be carrying on as an independent producer.

“The split affords both of us the opportunity to do what we love most. To make, release and perform music. As to be expected there is some pain – but no bad blood. We will be supporting each other’s future endeavours wholeheartedly. We love each other dearly and it is with each other’s best interests at heart that this decision has been made.

“And so for one final time together and with all the collective love we can muster for each other and for you,

Stay well,
Mike and Narch

P.S. Keep your eyes peeled. We both have tracks dropping soon and PHFat is hitting a country-wide tour starting from Friday.”

Information about a new PHFat single release and tour will be announced soon.
