Howzit MSN has launched a mobile version of its website to deliver the latest news in an easy format from any mobile phone with a web browser or WAP support. The site allows users to take in the most important news, sports, entertainment and business news of the moment with a single glance. The stories are short and snappy for on-the-go reading, while the site is designed to load up quickly even with slower cellular connections. It allegedly offers a good user experience across a range of devices, from the latest smartphones through to older feature phones with WAP support.
