

Adopt-a-School launches more school development projects

Adopt-a-School Foundation (AAS) recently launched Whole School Development (WSD) projects at schools in the Eastern Cape. The projects were launched in partnership with the Industrial Development Corporation of South Africa (IDC), Wipro Technologies, and the Nelson Mandela Foundation.

Photo by NeONBRAND on Unsplash

AAS' Whole School Development model aims to improve and uplift the academic, infrastructural, social and security environments in adopted schools. WSD ensures that schools have the necessary management and community leadership to support an environment conducive to excellence in both teaching and learning.

Cotton On's philanthropic wing has invested R100m in SA education

1 Nov 2018

The launch celebrated the progress made in the five adopted schools in the Eastern Cape, where the IDC has invested over R20m in upgrading facilities at these schools, including the construction of a library in honour of the Nelson Mandela's 100-year centenary birthday.

The new ICT centres at Zamokuhle Junior Secondary School and Tholang Secondary School was implemented in partnership with Wipro Technologies, who made contributions of software and hardware to these facilities.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>