

Free job board for global open source community

STUTTGART, GERMANY: www.openDesktop.org, a network portal for open source and IT specialists around the world, recently launched a free job board for its global open source community. "The job board is more than a traditional job board. It is also a project board. We expect it to become a popular place for community members to outsource jobs, such as logo designs. Developers may also search for project members, or for experts to market newly-built applications. The board may even be used to search for business partners, or project financiers. In short, it's a multipurpose job board," said founder and CEO Frank Karlitschek.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>