

Masterclass for project managers and engineers

In-house half-day masterclass to teach effective communication, contracting and negotiation skills for project managers and project engineers.

For project managers and engineers who want to develop better skills in client partnering and in project communication. In today's world projects cannot be delivered in isolation, engineers and project managers must partner effectively with business clients to deliver change projects. Strong partnerships requires a solid communication protocol and therefore purposeful communication planning.

This Masterclass is offered to clients in-house at their offices which makes it easy and convenient to schedule - it is a half-day workshop session. For a quote and to schedule this imperative workshop, please contact Caroline on 083 263 2660.
