

Journalist fellowships available for HIV/AIDS coverage

Senior-level print and radio journalists from Botswana, Lesotho, Malawi, Namibia, Zambia and Zimbabwe, with experience in covering health issues, are invited to apply for a Panos Fellowship on Global Trade and Access to Treatment by Friday, 1 December 2006.

Panos Institute Southern Africa (PSAf) is sponsoring this fellowship for journalists wishing to produce reports that capture the voices of people living with HIV and AIDS in the southern Africa region and raise issues surrounding access to treatment, such as antiretroviral (ARV) drugs.

One print journalist and one radio journalist from each of the eligible countries will be awarded a fellowship with a total value of US$2000. Successful applicants will work under the supervision and guidance of a Panos-appointed editor to produce two in-depth investigative reports raising important HIV/AIDS issues that have not fully been covered before by the mainstream media.

Applicants are asked to supply a CV with their two latest samples of related published or broadcast work, as well as two abstracts for story ideas which will be completed during the fellowship.

For more information or to apply, email Walter Otis Tapfumaneyi at , telephone +260 1 263258 or visit www.journalism.co.za.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>