Having worked on such diverse publications as Kick Off, Men's Health, Horizons and Cosmopolitan, Mali is definitely up for the challenge of guiding the four-language edition of Bona forward. "Having already received a significant facelift while retaining its heart and commitment to providing readers with information to help them love the lives they live, this will be a brand to watch as the magazine landscape changes," she says.

Having spent the last decade editing Longevity magazine, mother of two and PICA-award winner, Naude says she is looking forward to engaging with new moms and moms-to-be.

"My aim is to build on the magazine's excellent reputation as a trusted and inspiring resource of information and lifestyle content and to go from strength to strength."
