

Tourism and travel trade joins GP Lifestyle Tourism Street Party to celebrate Gauteng

The first GP Lifestyle Tourism Street Party will be taking place this month in Gauteng, which will see the travel and tourism trade party throughout the day and into the night at the regenerated Fox Street warehouse. The event is designed to remind Gautengers that there are as much life and vibrancy here to be proud of as London, New York, Sydney and Cape Town.

Gauteng Tourism Authority's chief executive officer, Siphwe Ngwenya welcomed the initiative and expressed confidence that it will be worthwhile. "The tourism trade is an important stakeholder in the We d do Tourism campaign that South African Tourism is championing and that we are part of."

Bringing the travel trade together

The campaign aims to grow tourist numbers by five million over the next five years and a bulk of that will have to come from Gauteng as the most visited province in South Africa. We are targeting a contribution of one million, which will only be achievable if the trade sector comes to the party. Therefore, we hope to grow this event into a premier showcase of the city of gold, Johannesburg, and destination Gauteng as a whole," said Ngwenya.

The event will bring the travel trade together to celebrate Gauteng as a destination and highlight what it has to offer. The venue - 1 Fox Precinct - spans a series of historic warehouses that date back to the city's gold mining roots, now converted into a funky shopping and dining destination.

Different streets in the warehouse will have different themes and interests, with 60 exhibitors spanning guesthouses, hotels, activities and adventure specialists and transport companies. Also, taking part will be the Cradle Tourism Company, Sandton Tourism, Soweto Tourism, Dinokeng, Vilakazi Street and global brands with a presence in Johannesburg.

A host of entertainment

Participants and companies alike are encouraged to come dressed for the inaugural theme of “My City of Gold”. Guests will include MECs, Mix FM's DJ Kerry-Anne Allerston to host the music event, performance by The Kiffness & ChianoSky, as well as popular footballers, actors, and musicians.

The Kiffness

“Johannesburg is an amazing city and worthy of competing against other world cities such as New York, Paris, and London in the tourism field. Yet there is a lack of belief in what the city and its wonderful people have to offer. In other cities, the industry operates almost like a family in promoting their city even though they are in competition with each other. Now it's time for our local tourism industry to come together and share stories, experience the offerings and grow the love for Jozi," says Adelbert Retief, founder and MD Leisure Connexion.

GP Lifestyle Tourism Street Party will become an annual event for the industry to look forward to, where hotels, activities, restaurants and tour operators can showcase their products. A website, created by 360 Online Marketing will become available for attendees to register, creating a powerful database of influence in the inbound tourism market.
