There are just two days left to register for the prestigious awards, and WAN-IFRA is calling for entries from Africa news media, ahead of the awards ceremony in Johannesburg, South Africa, later this year.

Media24 in South Africa were the big winners in 2018, alongside the Nation Media Group, Independent Media, the BBC, the Moroccan News Agency and the Children's Radio Foundation.

Koketso Moeti, founding director, Amandla.mobi, was one of the awards judges: "Digital media offers an important opportunity for media to engage with all audiences in very new ways and in real time. It is exciting to note just how many people are thinking deeply about the quality of their content, new ways of engaging new audiences and bringing people online"

The African Digital Media Awards' winners are automatically entered into the World Digital Media Awards competition. The entry deadline is 12 July 2019. The awards will be announced in Johannesburg, South Africa on 11 September 2019, at the Digital Media Africa conference.
