Felix Kessel has been appointed creative lead at WPP's agency for Distell, Team Liquid.

Kessel was the CEO and CCO of Leo Burnett South Africa after having co-founded and acted as CCO of OwenKessel, which was acquired by the Publicis Groupe. He has extensive experience in alcohol marketing for brands such as Castle Lite and Amstel Lager.

“This opportunity, to guide some of South Africa’s most wonderful and powerful brands and tell quintessential, positive South African stories is, of course, a great responsibility but also one that I relish getting stuck into. Guiding my team through the transforming landscape of communication while keeping our market engrossed with relevant, insight-based creative work – all with the aim of creating work that not only stands out, but shapes our combined culture positively – is something that drives me personally.”

Here, Kessel continues and says that making a positive difference and an impact on the cultural landscape of South Africa is what gets him out of bed in the morning.

“ You can’t underestimate the impact of great marketing and advertising and the power it has to move people positively. It’s a blessing to be able to do that every day. ”
