

2022 Eco-Logic Awards winners announced

Hosted at the Two Oceans Aquarium in Cape Town earlier this month, the 11th annual Eco-Logic Awards recognised a lineup of ecologically beneficial products, services, individuals and organisations for helping protect and preserve the planet.

This year's entries included eco-initiatives such as mobile showers for homeless people, solar-efficient programmes, micro-farming and food security programmes, youth conservation programmes, biodiversity and conservation funding initiatives, small- and large-scale community and river clean-ups, innovative recycling and waste management initiatives, healthy household products including biodegradable and non-toxic concentrates, water soluble cleaning sachets and reusable sponges, highly efficient wood burning cooking stoves, as well as innovative washable sanitary wear and reusable natural pineapple fibre cloth nappies.

"These eco-champions give us reason for hope and optimism as they inspire us and demonstrate that through ecological intelligence, we can all make a significant positive impact, and collectively we can heal this planet, and in the process, heal ourselves," said Eco-Logic Awards founder and director, David Parry-Davies, who is also the publisher of Enviropaedia.
