

Jumping on the 'Comes With Music' bandwagon

Sony BMG is joining Universal Music Group in allowing users of select Nokia mobile phones access to its entire music catalogue later this year.

Nokia's "Comes With Music" program will allow users who buy select cell phone models to download any song from Sony BMG's catalogue onto their phone or their computers during the first 12 months of owning such a device, and can be kept indefinitely; however, the technology does not allow the songs to be burned onto CDs.

Nokia announced a partnership with Universal last fall, and now has brought Sony BMG aboard.
