

Barry Hilton's Grey Matters

South Africa's favourite cousin has turned 50, but, according to Barry Hilton, this only means he is older and fatter, not necessarily wiser. Hilton will share his view on ageing and life in general GrandWest's Grand Arena on Saturday, 7 November 2009.

The comedian believes his experience of ageing will be particularly useful for teenagers needing to understand their parents and says: “Actually, I'm a bit like red wine, not the red bit, I just whine a lot.”

Hilton's humour remains irrepressible and his show will focus on life, family, politics and social issues as seen from his irreverent point of view.

The show starts at 7pm and tickets are available from Computicket.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>