

Interactive kiosk rental now available

Following its successful ad hoc rentals of interactive touch screen kiosks over the past few years, JusTTouchIT has launched a formal Kiosk Rental Division for companies wishing to try c the technology or to use it for conferences, exhibitions or product launches.

Frank Nunan, founder and owner of The Kiosk Shop, reportedly South Africa's first and only interactive kiosk consultancy says the idea is to encourage purchases through rentals. "The more people can try out the technology at a reasonable price, the greater the likelihood of them implementing interactive self-service projects."

Kiosks are available for short-term periods - for launches, exhibitions, conferences and product launches, medium term - two to four weeks, for longer in-store promotions. The service is backed up by full technical support including on-site technicians as required or remote monitoring for longer rental periods.

Units range from simple desktop to sophisticated double screen, highly brandable units. In addition to hardware, the company can also offer development of specialised applications, including surveys, quizzes, interactive product catalogues, product demos at highly affordable rates.
