

Frost & Sullivan host Southern Africa investment briefing

CAPE TOWN: Frost & Sullivan will be hosting an online analyst briefing on Thursday, 10 June 2010 at 3pm CAT. The briefing plans to look at the infrastructure backlog in Southern Africa and highlight key investment opportunities across the region. It also plans to provide insight into projects in information and communication technologies, power generation, transportation and water.

"African governments have been slow to scope, design, award and implement projects due to limited skills and financial resources," says Frost & Sullivan industrial analyst, Litiya Matakala. "This briefing provides an overview of key infrastructure needs and their attractiveness in selected Southern African countries."

The discussion will include analyses of key infrastructure projects, the investment climate in Southern African countries, key and potential investment opportunities, and country and business risk. It aims to benefit project financiers, equipment suppliers and various government agencies involved in infrastructure development.

To participate in this briefing, email Patrick Cairns at patrick.cairns@frost.com with the following information: your full name, company name, title, telephone number, email, address, company website and country. Upon receipt of the above information, a registration link will be emailed to you. You may also register to receive a recorded version of the briefing at anytime by submitting the aforementioned contact details.