

euronews launches EXPRESS

LYON, FRANCE: Connection breakdowns, unstable networks, bulky images... euronews offers the solution to these reception problems with its new app for the iPhone - claimed to be the lightest news app on the market. Get the top stories in real time without worrying about connection difficulties.

euronews has designed an ultra-light application that is designed to allow news addicts to keep up to date with news, culture, business and sport, all day long. Available from the AppStore, the new euronews EXPRESS application for the iPhone is claimed to function even under minimal reception conditions (Edge) and can be consulted offline thanks to the cache memory. The high speed of euronews EXPRESS is made possible by an optimised architecture and the text / image mix (no video for better performance).

The app offers three different sections:

- News: The big stories and developments in international news, sport, business and culture.
- Flash: all the latest news wires.
- Editor's Choice: the top stories selected by the newsroom.

The application is available in the 12 language versions of the channel: English, Arabic, French, German, Italian, Persian, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Spanish, Turkish and Ukrainian.

euronews EXPRESS will soon be available on Google Play.

This new iPhone app adds to the existing offer and precedes the upcoming launch of a full multi-device euronews app (iPhone and iPad).
