

Cannes Lions, Gates Foundation issue challenge: Change the world

LONDON, UK: The Cannes Lions International Festival of Creativity is partnering with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, the world's largest philanthropic foundation, in an effort to generate communications ideas that could help change the world. SA is represented by Rob McLennan, executive creative director, Net#work BBDO, on the Cannes Chimera.

Grand Challenges Explorations: Aid is Working. Tell the World is a unique call for action that aims to inspire the world's greatest brand communicators to come up with an idea that will help solve a global problem.

Any individual, team, agency or company can submit a communications idea simply expressed on just two-pages, based on the challenge issued through the foundation's Grand Challenges Explorations programme. The brief calls for new and innovative ways of telling the real story behind global aid.

"The global Cannes Lions community is made up of the world's greatest communicators who are solving problems for clients all day every day," says Philip Thomas, Cannes Lions CEO. "Imagine if our community could harness this creativity to solve a global problem with an outstanding idea expressed on just two pieces of A4 paper? Imagine if a great idea emerged, and if that idea was honed and improved by the best thinkers in the industry? And imagine if there was the money to actually make something happen, to create the idea."

US$100 000 to develop idea

Up to ten participants will be awarded US$100 000 for the development of their idea - and the chance to be mentored by the Grand Prix Winners from Cannes Lions 2011 who have come together to form the 'Cannes Chimera', possibly the greatest collection of creative talent ever assembled. Successful projects will then have the chance to seek additional funding up to US$1m to bring their idea to fruition.

Tom Scott, director, Global Brand & Innovation at the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation said, "Aid is effective, but the story of aid isn't breaking through. Now more than ever it's critical that we look at new and innovative ways to change the debate. We are excited to partner with Cannes Lions to help ensure that the world's greatest creative minds can put their energy against a really important challenge."

How to take part

Grand Challenges Explorations: Aid is Working. Tell the World is open to everyone. The idea has to be submitted on two sides of A4 paper between now and 15 May. In the summer, all the ideas will be judged anonymously, solely on their merit, stripping everything back to the purity and creativity of the idea itself. The jury will be made up of the Cannes Chimera, as well as members of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation's review board and a small group of panel experts. Up to ten of the most brilliant ideas may be selected as finalists to each receive US$100 000 to further develop the idea.

In the autumn, Cannes Lions will fly the finalists and the Cannes Chimera to the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation campus in Seattle, USA. There, the Cannes Chimera will draw upon their different skills and expertise to help hone the winning ideas and mentor their creators. The ideas can then be re-submitted to the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation with a chance of winning up to US$1m to put them into practice. There, the originators will be invited back to the Cannes Lions Festival of Creativity in 2013 to show the rest of the global advertising community what they produced and the difference it has made.

The Cannes Chimera

Cannes Lions has created a group, The Cannes Chimera, made up of one senior creative from the award winning agencies of each of the 2011 Cannes Lions Grand Prix winning pieces of work. About Grand Challenges Explorations

Grand Challenges Explorations (GCE) supports hundreds of early-stage projects - including many ideas that have never before been tested - and experts from a wide range of disciplines and regions. The Explorations initiative funds innovative ideas that could lead to new vaccines, diagnostics, drugs, and other tools and technologies targeting our greatest challenges in health and development.

GCE is an extension of the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation's commitment to the Grand Challenges in Global Health, which was launched in 2003 to accelerate the discovery of new technologies to improve global health. To date, the foundation has committed over US$500 million to support hundreds of projects on topics such as making childhood vaccines easier to use in poor countries, and creating new ways to control insects that spread disease.

Key features of the Grand Challenges Explorations initiative are:

- A short application. Two-page applications are accepted online at https://gce.gatesfoundation.org/_layouts/GCE/Pages/login.aspx
- Rapid turnaround time. We will select grants in approximately five months from the proposal submission deadline.
- We review for novel ideas that show great promise. Our review process is based on reviewers with a track record in identifying innovative ideas selecting the proposals they find most pioneering - no consensus or peer review is needed.
- Phase I grants of US$100 000 are awarded initially; projects have one opportunity to apply for a follow-on Phase II grant of up to US$1m.
