

Cosatu wants halt to corruption

According to a Fin24 report, Cosatu leader Zwelinzima Vavi has claimed that corruption and factionalism could tear the Congress of South African Trade Unions - and its alliance partners - apart.

Vavi contends that unless corruption, incompetence and wastage are stamped out, the "struggle for a better life for workers" will be sabotaged. He blamed "slate politics" for the loss of good leadership skills, Fin24 reports.
