

Airtel Nigeria wins award for Best HR Practice

The Chartered Institute of Personnel Management (CIPM) in Nigeria has awarded Airtel Nigeria with the Best Human Resources Practices Award within the telecommunications sector.

The award was presented to the Airtel team, comprising human resources director, Jubril Saba; head: Shared Services, Tunde Oginni and Otu Umoren, head: HR Operations & Analysis, at the opening of 44th Annual Conference of CIPM which took place last week, at the International Conference Centre in Abuja.

The prestigious award came on the heels of a comprehensive, independent audit conducted by CIPM among major GSM operators in the country.

At the event, a citation in honour of Airtel commended the telecommunications services provider for complying with global HR standards and for following best practices in its employee relations.

Speaking on the award, Airtel's chief executive officer and managing director, Rajan Swaroop dedicated the award to staff of the company, saying the recognition is an eloquent testimony of the dedication and good work of employees of the organisation.

"As an employer of choice in Nigeria, our highly motivated employees are always happy to follow best practices in delighting both internal and external stakeholders. We desire to be the most loved brand in the daily lives of Nigerians and we will continue to push ourselves very hard in actualizing this optimistic vision, he said.

CIPM was established in 1968 to regulate the Practice of Human Resource Management in Nigeria and promote excellence in the Acquisition and Application of Knowledge and Skills by Practitioners, thereby contributing to sustainable National Development.
